The first system of musical notation for 'The Rose Tree' is written on a single five-line staff. It begins with a treble clef and a key signature of one flat (B-flat). The melody consists of a series of eighth and sixteenth notes, with some notes beamed together. The notation includes various accidentals (sharps, flats, and naturals) and rests. The system ends with a double bar line.

The diagram consists of 16 vertical bars of varying heights, arranged in a sequence. The bars are grouped into four sets of four. The first set has bars of heights 1, 2, 3, and 4. The second set has bars of heights 1, 2, 3, and 4, with the first bar having a diagonal line through it. The third set has bars of heights 1, 2, 3, and 4, with the first bar having a diagonal line through it. The fourth set has bars of heights 1, 2, 3, and 4, with the first bar having a diagonal line through it. The bars are connected by a horizontal line, and the entire sequence is enclosed in a rectangular frame.
